S. B. Turman Is Elected
Chairman of New Board for 1915—Various Committees
Are Appointed

Presentation of the report of the county tax equalizers showing an increase of over $3,000,000 over the county tax values of 1913, the appointment of the county tax equalizers for the county to succeed Louis Z. Rosser, representative of all other counties in the election of S. B. Turman to the chairmanship and the appointment of committees, featured the business meeting of the year Wednesday of the Fulton county commissioners. The annual report of the tax equalizers is the first to be made since the county was organized under the provisions of the equalization act which went into effect last January. The report was highly praised by the board, and the board passed a resolution lauding the tax equalizers for an unprecedented increase in tax values and promising to do all in the board's power to help the assessor in their work.

The first 1915 meeting of the county commissioners found three new members of the board, T. J. Hightower, Jr., Oscar Mills and Dr. W. L. Gilbert. They succeeded General Clifford Hightower, Dr. C. Waters and Shelby Smith. The two old members who were re-elected to this year's board are S. B. Turman and W. Tom Witte.

The commissioners met in Judge Benjamin H. Hill's court room. The room was thronged with spectators and reporters, and for over three hours the board did business but listened to the plans.

Immediately upon going into session, the board elected S. B. Turman chairman and T. J. Hightower, Jr. vice chairman. Mr. Turman appointed the following committees: Finance, legislation and minutes, Finance chairman, Major Hightower; public works, Wm. chairman, Major Hightower; police, fire, health and sanitation, Mills chairman, Gilbert chairman; and Wm. and juveniles, Gilbert chairman. Wm. and Turman, public buildings, Turman chairman, Gilbert chairman.

The report of the county tax assessors was read, showing an increase of $3,051,218 over the county tax values of the year 1913, a remarkable increase which is attributed by members of the board to the tax equalization act which went into effect last January.

The increase in city real property is $1,457,172, in city personal property, $1,457,172, in total increase of city property is $2,914,344. The increase in county personal property is $2,914,344. The total increase in county property, exclusive of city property, is $2,914,344.

The report by districts shows that Buckhead district leads, with an increase of $215,458, and that with the least increase is the district of the city. The assessors recommended in their report that all property owners be required to give the number of their property, in order that the work of the assessor be made easier. The assessors thanked T. M. Armistead, tax collector, and Stewart, tax collector, for their cooperation in the work of equalization.

Commissioner Mills voiced the opinion of the other commissioners when he stated that the assessor's report is the first ever heard from county assessors. He declared that it was a remarkable event, and that the assessor's report is the first ever heard from county assessors. He declared that it was a remarkable event, and that the assessor's report is the first ever heard from county assessors.

An $8.05 New York Dinner Cost $3.40 Berlin in War Time

There Is a Plenty of Food in the German Capital, and It Is Sold for Nearly One-Half the Price Charged in London

(Copyright, 1915, by Herbert Corey.)
LONDON, Dec. 24.—Berlin isn't feeling the pinch of hunger, if one may judge by her restaurant prices. Neither is London. By the same test New York is on the verge of starvation. A dinner which in Berlin costs $2.50 costs $4.97 in London and $7.50 in New York. One ate at the same rate—a 10 per cent rate—in the three cities, always adding a few pennies when necessary to make the sum come out even. So that in Berlin the waiter received 20 cents for his portion of the entertainment. In London he would be given 55 cents, and in New York 75 cents. The total cost would therefore be: New York, $8.05; London, $5.97; Berlin, $3.40.

There is a restaurant in each of the three cities which may fairly be compared with the other two. They serve the same sort of people with the same sort of food. The restaurant in London is located just off the Strand, in London. It is on Regent street, in the rear of Piccadilly, and in New York on a side street near lower Broadway. In Berlin more food is given you for your money. In London it is more courteously served. In New York it is the most delicately cooked.

PRESIDENT IS ASKED FOR COMMISSIONERS NAVAL STORES QUARTY

Hardwick Resolution Requesting Him to Submit All Correspondence With Great Britain Passes Senate

ATTEMPT TO BROADEN
INQUIRY IS DEFEATED
Passage of Resolution, It Is Believed, Will Aid in Having Britain Rescind Its Recent Ruling

(By Ralph Smith.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Hardwick naval stores resolution was passed by the senate today after an hour's debate, which developed a strong sympathetic feeling among senators for the plight in which the naval stores business has been placed by Great Britain's attitude toward these products.

The resolution requests the president to transmit to the senate copies of all communications transmitted to or received from Great Britain touching the recent order of that government declaring naval stores, resins, rosin, and resinous products absolute contraband of war; also, the previous order of the British government declaring that products of this kind were not contraband of war.

There is in the resolution, also, a provision requesting all communications from any foreign government relating to the detention of ships under American registry carrying cargoes of naval stores.

The resolution was called up for consideration by Mr. Hardwick following a conference earlier in the day between the senior senator from Georgia and the Georgia senators, Mr. Hardwick and Mr. Smith. They decided to press the resolution for passage, partly as a result of a conference with the Georgia senators, Mr. Hardwick and Mr. Smith.

200 PERSONS INJURED IN N. Y. SUBWAY FIRE

Pulmoners Used to Resuscitate
Many Who Were Overcome by Smoke

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—New York's subway was visited today by fire and panic which sent some 200 persons to hospitals, caused the death of one woman and demoralized the city's transportation system.

The fire was said to have been due to electrical equipment in a conduit between the Fifth and Fifty-ninth street stations. The noise, flame and smoke terrified the 700 or more passengers of a second train, which was nearby and in their unreasoning efforts to escape, scores were badly burned, many knocked unconscious and still others were overcome by smoke.

The subway service, according to Commissioner McCall, of the public service commission, may be shut up for several days as a result of the accident. If that proves true it will mean a serious interruption of the city's transportation system.

The accident was described by the police as the worst in the history of the subway. It was said that when the fire started, the train was crowded with passengers, and the smoke was so thick that many were overcome.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—A German trench nearly half a mile long in the Argonne region was blown up by the allies, according to today's official Paris dispatch. The French then made an attack and captured half the trench. During the charge a grandson of the Italian patriot Garibaldi was killed.

The recent death in action of another grandson was said in Rome to have awakened the war spirit in Italy. Action from fighting in the Argonne activity is limited chiefly to Upper Alsace, where the Germans seem to have been no important developments.

"TIZ" EASES TIRED, SORE, SWOLLEN FEET

So tired of burning, aching, calloused feet and corns?
Use "TIZ."

Why go limping around with aching, swelling feet—feet so tired, chafed, sore and swollen you can hardly rest your shoes on or off? Why don't you get a 35-cent box of "TIZ" from the drug store now and gladden your tortured feet?

"TIZ" makes your feet glow with comfort; takes down swellings and draws the soreness and redness out of feet that chafe, smart and burn. "TIZ" instantly stops pain in corns, callouses and bunions. "TIZ" is glorious for tired, aching, sore feet. No more shoe tightness—no more foot torture. (Adv.)

It's Foolish to Suffer

You may be brave enough to stand backache, or headache, or dizziness. But if, in addition, urination is disordered, look out! If you don't wake up, and try to fix up your sick kidneys, you may fall into the clutches of Bright's disease, or some other ury acid malady or kidney trouble before you know it. But, if you move carefully, and help your kidneys by using them up with Doan's Kidney Pills, you can stop the pains you have and avoid future danger, as well.

GEORGIA MANUFACTURERS CONTEST STARTED OVER TEMPORARILY ORGANIZED FLOYD DEMONSTRATOR

Permanent Organization Will Be Effected When Plans Are Completed

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
ROME, Ga., Jan. 6.—Prof. J. H. Foster, newly appointed floyd demonstrator, has been appointed floyd demonstrator, and the contest position without a contest by R. W. Partee, the former demonstrator who has been displaced.

In his fight to retain possession, Partee has the Floyd county commission backing. The commission takes the ground that unless they have a vote in the matter of the appointment and retention in office of the county demonstrator the appropriation made by the county for the work should be withdrawn. Demonstrator Partee holds that he has given satisfactory service, and that the effort to give the appointment to another man or to have him transferred is the work of enemies.

CYCLORAMA IS RANKED JUST ABOVE WOODWARD

Councilman Freeman, Seeking Funds for Former, Pays Tribute to Both

The cyclorama picture first—Jim Woodward next.

In that order stand Atlanta's possessions in the mind and heart of George Freeman, new councilman from the Third ward.

Councilman Freeman said no himself Tuesday at a meeting of the park board, of which he is an ex-officio member by reason of the fact that he is chairman of the council committee on parks.

The park board during its meeting of last night was discussing the question of asking for an additional $1000 for certain improvements, and then Councilman Freeman.

"The next money we set should go toward a better building to house the cyclorama picture," he said.

"I might as well tell you all know where I stand," he said.

"I think more of that picture than of anything else," he said.

Accepting the mayor, and I think a lot of him."

Mayor Woodward, who was among those seated at the table, was not a bit embarrassed by Councilman Freeman's remarks. In fact, the mayor was quite visibly pleased, and joined enthusiastically in the laudatory remarks of the councilman's remarks.

STOVE MADE BY FRANKLIN IN THOMAS PAINE HOME

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Jan. 6.—The stove that was presented by Benjamin Franklin to Thomas Paine, writer and patriot, was restored yesterday to Paine's former house, now the headquarters of the Huguenot association in North avenue, New Rochelle.

Walter T. Bell, of Woodbury, Conn., who purchased the stove 19 years ago from the former owner of the building, brought it to the Huguenot association, where it was to be restored by Franklin. The crudely made sections are fitted together in grooves instead of with nuts, bolts or rivets. It is now in the room once used by Paine as his study.

WAR WILL BRING TOURISTS TO DIXIE, SAYS LETTON

Predictions that the hotel business in Atlanta will boom greatly during the present year, were made by speakers at the eighth annual banquet of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association Tuesday night at the Georgian Terrace hotel.

J. P. Letton, James, president of the hotel and newly elected president of the association, declared that the European war will be of inestimable benefit to American hotels because it will keep the usual continental tourists at home this year. "See America first," will be the slogan in 1915 as never before, and when our transient citizens start on their annual journeyings in the near future a great many of them will come to Atlanta.

The banquet was one of the most enjoyable the hotel men have ever held. The hospitality of the host, R. L. Grant, manager of the Terrace, provided a delicious menu. Prof. House made everybody happy with his witty song-book, and Frank D. Sweet and Edson Brown, professional entertainers, collaborated on a couple of catchy carols.

There were several invited guests at the dinner, all of whom spoke praise to the hotel men for their energy and loyalty to Atlanta. They were Fred J. Paxson, president of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association; Lee M. Jordan, attorney for the hotel men's association; Councilman C. D. Knight, of the Second ward; Albert S. Adams, president of the Atlanta Rotary club; St. Elmo Massengale, president of the Atlanta Ad Man's club; Ivan E. Allen, president of the Atlanta convention bureau; W. Tom Wilson, of the board of county commissioners, and Mr. Jim Williams.

FIVE MISSING FOLLOWING BRUNSWICK BOAT WRECK

Capt. Harry Ingram and Engineer Charles U. Hart Thought Dead

BRUNSWICK, Ga., Jan. 6.—Harry Ingram, captain, and Charles U. Hart, engineer, of the tugboat Rambler, and member of the crew are missing and two negroes are known to be dead following the wreck of the Rambler last night.

The boat went ashore on Little Cumberland beach late in the afternoon, and buckets were sent from the tugboat there to aid in floating the vessel. This morning no trace of the tug could be found. The bodies of two negro deck hands were found on the beach.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably one-third of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary indigestion and acid stomachs are serious in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, to begeth as ever. The acid must be maintained, and its action must be kept under control. It is for this purpose that a powerful antacid is used. The antacid is a little water or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed by a glass of antacid. Antacid can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.—(Adv.)

A Time for Action.

Thomas Edison never made a keener observation than when he said, approves the war and its effect on business in the United States: "It has surprised me to see how weak-kneed Americans have become. They ought to get out and do something, and now is the opportune time. Why, you can put up a building cheaper today than you could before the war; yet many of our supposedly good business men will wait until the war is over for a sign of prosperity, and pay more for the building. The wise man will prepare for the boom in trade that we shall soon experience, and which will be tremendous after the war. The Federal Reserve act has already proved its value, and I think President Wilson has made himself clear as to his attitude toward business."

Far from repining over the unsettled conditions which naturally followed the war's first shock, Americans should bestriding themselves to the unexplored opportunities which ensued and which are continually widening. The same forces that produced a short season of depression are filled with the elements of prolonged and fruitful activity. Having adjusted ourselves to new needs, we should go confidently forward to utilize new advantages.

The temporary check upon America's foreign commerce has given way to steady and enormous gains in our export trade. During the month of December alone there was an increase of nearly one hundred million dollars in export values, as compared with the same month of 1913. The Old World is dependent upon the United States for a vast deal of clothing and food and other necessities of life. For the time being we have almost a monopoly, a natural monopoly, on industry and commerce. Unprecedented fortune is within our reach; we have only to grasp it.

The months immediately following the outbreak of the war brought hardship to some interests and uncertainty to all; caution of the most scrupulous kind was then necessary. But those conditions were transient. They no longer obtain. What business needs today is bold confidence and an aggressive stride. In the field of building operations, for example, there has seldom been so favorable a time. Material is now from fifteen to twenty per cent cheaper than a year ago, and far cheaper than it is likely to be six months hence. The wise property owner or investor will not wait until the war is over and prices are high to make improvements and repairs. He will act now, thereby serving his own interests and at the same time promoting the community's welfare.

On the same principle, farsighted business men, as Mr. Edison says, "will prepare for the boom in trade that we shall soon experience and which will become tremendous after the war." No one who observes the present trend can doubt that a far-reaching revival of industry and commerce is already under way. The extraordinary foreign demand for American products has set scores of factories, which were comparatively idle, working on full time and at full capacity. This activity will soon communicate itself to every line of work. It seems, indeed, that we could not, if we would, resist the wonderful forces of prosperity which are afoot.

Facilities for credit and finance were never before so broad and sound as today, and the Government's attitude toward business was never more favorable. Economic wrongs which were a source of agitation for years have been rectified, and statesmanship finds its true task in constructive fields. The United States has entered an era of development and opportunity, the like of which it has never known in the most prosperous years gone by. The time for doubt and restraint is over. The hour for faith and full-scaled action has arrived.

It is easy to find a man who is willing to grunt while you lift.

Some people give the impression that they believe every word they say.

It's a sad fact that one-half the world doesn't care how the other half lives.

The South's Reviving Business.

The reopening of mills, the return of traveling salesmen to the road, an increase in orders, improvement in collections, and abounding confidence in the business outlook for 1915 are all indicated in The Journal's recent interviews with the manufacturers and wholesale merchants of Atlanta. The revival of industry and commerce which was felt weeks ago in the East and the West is now manifest in the South, and bids fair from this time forward to become more and more pronounced. Witness the following statements by representative institutions:

"We have put back men on the road in the territories where they were withdrawn, and expect to put back more in a few days. Our collections since the first of this month have been a great deal better. Indeed, we have received money that we never expected to get. We are nothing but good times ahead, and we are going after the business accordingly."

"Our salesmen are on the road again, our collections are better, and we feel that the upward trend of cotton will induce the farmers to sell enough to pay their debts to the country merchant, thus stimulating and strengthening business all along the line."

"Our December business was better than we had dared hope. Though our men were not on the road, mail orders kept the total for the month up to the total for December 1912. Our salesmen are now at work, and their reports are altogether encouraging."

"We are running our plant on practically full time. In pursuing an aggressive policy to get business when it was hard to get we have carried our goods into new fields and have introduced them to new customers, whom we expect to keep."

"When the depression set in, following the outbreak of the European war, we believed it would be only transient, and accordingly we did not curtail our force, but kept straight along. Developments have proven that our guess was correct. We have just balanced up our 1914 business, and are satisfied. We expect 1915 to be the best year we have ever had."

This testimony, which could be multiplied to great length, is typical of the community's sound judgment on industrial and mercantile affairs. And it is especially significant for the reason that Atlanta interests of this kind are sensitive to conditions throughout the Southeast. The improvements noted by these merchants and manufacturers are evidence of widespread recovery in Georgia and neighboring States. They show that cotton is moving more freely, that farmers, realizing their opportunity and obligation, are selling enough cotton to pay their creditors, who in turn are enabled to pay the houses that have trusted them. This movement is not yet as broad and swift as it should be, but it is unmistakably in the right direction, and accordingly business grows in confidence and strength.

Particularly interesting is the statement by a number of merchants and manufacturers that in seeking trade with unusual aggressiveness when times were dull, they have extended their interests to new fields, have developed new opportunities and secured new customers. So successful was this creative policy that in many instances it offset the losses from depression and brought the total of 1914 business up to the record of prosperous years. The effects of the war shock were felt more acutely in the South than in any other region of the United States; but the resources of the South were left unimpaired. Its natural wealth, its energy and its spirit are as great today as ever. It has inherent strength which, though checked for a season, is indestructible. It has entered the year 1915 with resoluteness and with an optimism which is based upon solid fact and which will rise to golden achievement.

A wise man says what he has to say and then shuts up.

Quit being a knocker and follow the example of Petroglyph, which is always optimistic.

Mr. Nathan Straus.

Georgia always holds a proud and hearty welcome for that distinguished philanthropist, Mr. Nathan Straus, who was reared in this State and who is now in Atlanta on a visit which, it is hoped, will result in a permanent return to the land of his youth. Though Mr. Straus has lived in New York for nearly fifty years, he spent his boyhood in Georgia, where his parents had settled. Here he was schooled, and here he made friendships and inherited memories which have clung to his heart through all after years.

Singularly gifted in the highest talents of business and finance, he has applied himself chiefly to the cause of human service and betterment. As a man of affairs, he has been brilliantly successful, but it is for his wise and generous charities that he is best known and honored throughout America. Mr. Straus is pre-eminently a humanitarian, and the good he has done, the beneficent influence he has diffused is felt today, not only in the United States, but over all the world.

Some twenty-five years ago he inaugurated in New York City a campaign for pure milk. That one endeavor has saved the lives of thousands of children, and has inspired scores of other cities to similar efforts. He has earned his country's gratitude. He is warmly welcome in his native Georgia, where people trust that he will come again to live among them.

Even Napoleon could not win much glory fighting in a trench.

Say what you will about Mexico, they don't censor the war news to any extent.

Already the indications are that the new year will be a gloomy one for the pessimist.

Shakespeare Says--

This is the excellent folly of the world, that when we are sick in fortune, often the surfeit of our own behavior, we make guilty of our disasters, the Sun, the Moon, the Stars, as if we were villains on necessity, fools by heavenly compulsion, knaves, thieves and traitors by spherical predominance, drunkards, liars and by an enforced obedience of planetary influence, and all that we are evil in by a divine thrusting on.—Lear.

Washington Comment

BY MALCOLM SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 5.—The Hobson prohibition amendment, defeated in the house just before the holiday recess, wasn't the political wire that congressmen suspected it would be. At least, that is the conclusion one forms from discussing the question with members who voted both for and against the proposition.

To hear the congressmen tell it, few legislative questions have arisen in the introduction of the liquor test in 1917. It has been full of vicissitudes. It played some part in the overthrow of Speaker Cannon in the house. It has been voted by two presidents, and two senators have died while promoting its advancement through congress. It, indeed, has been one of the historic bills in congress.

Members who opposed the Hobson resolution say they have received practically no letters from their districts concerning their course, and members who championed the resolution declare they have received many communications commending their stand, and little or no adverse criticism.

The passage through the senate of the immigration bill on Saturday invites attention to the course of immigration legislation since the introduction of the liquor test in 1917. It has been full of vicissitudes. It played some part in the overthrow of Speaker Cannon in the house. It has been voted by two presidents, and two senators have died while promoting its advancement through congress. It, indeed, has been one of the historic bills in congress.

In 1917, congress passed a bill containing the liquor test. President Cleveland vetoed it very promptly, and from that day to this public interest has been focused on the legislation because of the great bitterness of spirit it has evoked among its advocates and opponents.

Congressman Underwood of Alabama, in 1909, engineered the passage of an immigration bill through the house as a rider to an appropriation measure, but it died in the senate. Shortly thereafter, Congressman Burnett, also of Alabama, was made chairman of the immigration committee, and since then he and Congressmen of Massachusetts have been sponsors for the bill.

The bill was passed by the senate in 1906, but was beaten in the house by a few votes, "through the scheming of Speaker Cannon," as Representative Burnett still insists. At any rate, Cannon on that occasion left the senate's chair and the speaker's work on the floor of the house. As a result, Representative Gardner, and from that moment fought with the Republican rebels until Cannon was shorn of his power.

Next, came a substitute for the creation of a commission to study the question. Senator William of South Carolina, a member of the commission, died while engaged in his labors. He was succeeded by Senator McLaughlin of Mississippi, who also died, to be succeeded in turn by Senator Percy of Mississippi, who was defeated by Governor Vandarm.

When the commission instituted its investigations only four of its members remained to carry out the work. Four years later, when they reported to congress, eight of the nine members favored the test.

As a result of these investigations, there was introduced in congress what is known as the Dillingham bill, a member of the commission, died while engaged in his labors. He was succeeded by Senator McLaughlin of Mississippi, who also died, to be succeeded in turn by Senator Percy of Mississippi, who was defeated by Governor Vandarm.

"Late one evening," says Mr. Burnett, "President Taft informed me of the result of the liquor test. It was passed by both houses in 1912. 'Late one evening,' says Mr. Burnett, 'President Taft informed me of the result of the liquor test. It was passed by both houses in 1912. 'Late one evening,' says Mr. Burnett, 'President Taft informed me of the result of the liquor test. It was passed by both houses in 1912.'

A regiment of soldiers were at camp and a young Scottish recruit was put on sentry duty outside the general's tent. In the morning the general rose, looked out of his tent and said to the young man in a stern and loud voice:

"Who are you?"
The young man turned round smartly and said:
"Yes, Ho's yerself!"

"Tommy—I want another box of those pills, like what I got for mother yesterday."

Druggist—Did your mother say they were good?
Tommy—No, but they just fit my arguin.

The Searchlight

Boats driven by air propellers, which have become well known as sporting craft, have reached the utilitarian stage and bid fair to play an important part in commerce, especially in shallow streams and harbors and in canals. Broad, high-floored shells with hardly any perceptible draft can be constructed with overhead rigging for propellers, and, as it might almost be said, navigate wherever there is moisture.

Such a boat for use as a tug has been constructed in England and is well braced substantial rigging which carries the propeller shaft at a high rate of speed. It is said to be the fastest of its kind. The craft has developed great traction power in its trials. On occasions it has drawn with ease a string of six heavily loaded barges. Perhaps the whir of these air-propellers will take the place of the clanking draw boats of the tow men and the clanking draw boats that are "hauled" up from the bottom in some German canal.

HOUSES FOR RURAL SCHOOL TEACHERS

BY FRANK GRAY.

Rural school teachers experience greater difficulties each year in securing properly qualified teachers to take charge of their schools. One of the chief obstacles to overcome is that of securing suitable living conditions for the teachers at prices within reach of the rural school districts. Usually the families of teachers which an educated rural teacher would find congenial to live with are not willing to take boarders. Those who wish to take the teachers to board are not attracted to the rural school districts. The result is that the teachers are not willing to spread over the country to build cottages on or near the school grounds, thus providing the rural school districts with a more permanent and efficient equipment for work in domestic science that cannot be afforded in any other way.

While the teacher's cottage idea is one of the newest developments in rural education, it has far surpassed the hopes of its originators. The results with hundreds of schools in the country. The results as given in the communications recently received from the United States Commissioner of Education indicate that thousands of teachers' cottages are now under consideration. The state of Washington has been the first to take action. It has already followed close behind with eighty-three. One school district in Tennessee is now supplying these cottages for its rural schools. In some states there will be one or more teacher's houses before this year ends.

In Georgia a number of teacher's homes are already in use. One county superintendent wrote, "I had hoped to see several more this year, but, alas, the war and the cotton!"

One county in Alabama has just completed its first house for rural teachers, all convenient modern buildings erected on or near the school grounds. A cottage for the teacher was built and paid for by popular subscription. Six acres of land are attached to the school grounds and the teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds. The teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds. The teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds.

The first teacher's cottage in Texas was erected over a year ago upon the school grounds. It was loaned by the county for the purpose. The teacher pays ten dollars a month for it. The cottage enables the teacher to remain on the school grounds and to have a more permanent and efficient equipment for work in domestic science than can be afforded in any other way.

In Ohio, the first teacher's house was built in connection with a consolidated rural school which has since developed into a highly organized school center. The building was erected on the school grounds and is a part of the school grounds. The teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds. The teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds.

In contrast with this, equipped teacher's house must be noted the poor shacks which some of the bravest teachers in the entire country are glad to make their homes. In Montana a young woman teacher engaged to take charge of a school. She was unable to find a place to board. An empty room teacher was secured for her. She was unable to find a place to board. An empty room teacher was secured for her.

In Arizona a girl teacher, herself put up a shack and sleeping tent, which the assistance of some of the older boys. The ranch owner, who had a room for her, made one for herself and is now completely satisfied. In the meantime the school board is considering the erection of a permanent cottage to house their teachers.

While the best equipped homes for teachers will naturally be found in connection with the consolidated schools, cottages have been built in many other places. In some cases the teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds. In some cases the teacher's cottage is a part of the school grounds.

Quips and Quiddities

A woman who had engaged a new servant felt that she had at last secured the proverbial treasure, for the girl seemed to have a due appreciation of her beautiful home.

"You prefer to work in fine houses?" she remarked.

"Shure, mum," replied the girl. "I fe pleasure to hev nothing, but I xprine dishes to break."—Judge.

"What have you there, son?"
"Ten beans."
"Beans? Do you mean dollars?"
"Yep."

"What do you call money by its right name?"
"Alin' beans a good enough name for money."
"Not for you. You never plant any."

A regiment of soldiers were at camp and a young Scottish recruit was put on sentry duty outside the general's tent. In the morning the general rose, looked out of his tent and said to the young man in a stern and loud voice:

"Who are you?"

THE SECRET OF CONTENTMENT

BY DR. FRANK GRAY.
(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Gray.)

In a letter, with which some of my readers may be acquainted, written by Erasmus, he refers to Sir Thomas More and his famous book on "The Utopia."

"More hath built near London upon a barren waste a commodious house, neither man nor subject to envy, yet magnificent enough; there he converseth with his family, his wife, his son, and daughter, and his three daughters and their husbands, with eleven grandchildren. There is not any man so loving to his children as he, and he loveth his wife as well as his children."

He would be a most self-sustaining author who would write of the life of a man who had four or five children and yet so greatly that quality desired among men and women that we all grasp at any hint, and follow eagerly any lead, that may give promise of our coming to it.

Look, then, at these words of Erasmus and digest them well, for one good thing written of another, and both in the narrative and its subject touch the heart, and may find some toilsome crumbs of wisdom.

You will notice that More had four or five children and yet so greatly that quality desired among men and women that we all grasp at any hint, and follow eagerly any lead, that may give promise of our coming to it.

First, he had money enough to live comfortably. We may preach all we please upon the advantages of poverty, but most of us are not large enough of soul, to be contented with a few shillings a week.

Second, he had a large family. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man.

And are made of clay not heroic enough, to be able to rise above the drossing forces of penury. Plain, or else, they are contented with a few shillings a week. They are contented with a few shillings a week. They are contented with a few shillings a week.

Second, he had a large family. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man. It is a common saying that a man who has a large family is a contented man.

Third, he had an old wife that he loved "as well as if she were a young maid." Of all the loves of earth, that which is fullest of contentment and granite happiness is the love you have grown old with.

And lastly, "whosoever happens that could not be happy, if he loved as if nothing could happen more happily." There you have the open secret of all wise men, the kernel of the Oriental pundits, the gist of the Greek philosophers, the central idea of Christ, which is, that contentment is produced in the human breast not by chafing and pulling at events and circumstances to which we are subjected, but by so ordering our lives that we may skillfully adjust ourselves to whatever happens.

CHILD LABOR CONFERENCE MARKED BY HOT DEBATE

Dr. A. J. McKelway Assailed by North Carolina Editor for Pamphlets on South

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—Dr. A. J. McKelway, southern secretary of the National Child Labor committee, and David Clark, a Charlotte, N. C., editor, had a lively clash at today's session of the eleventh annual conference on child labor.

Clark declared that until northern states had cleaned up their bar rooms, gambling and vice dens and Sunday theaters they had no right to complain that children under thirteen years were permitted to work in cotton mills.

"Plainly speaking, it is none of their business," said he, referring to complaints from Massachusetts and New York. He charged representatives of the committee with misrepresenting facts in the south, declared against national child labor legislation and urged the delegates to clean up affairs in their home states before taking part in the affairs of others.

Dr. McKelway replied to Clark. As to national legislation, he said, he had only to quote Clark's father, Chief Justice Clark, of the North Carolina supreme court, who had held child labor legislation unconstitutional. The committee, he said, had not exhibited to the public pictures of humanity wrecked by early employment, but, he said, the next generation would have living pictures of the effects.

He denied that the committee had disseminated information that four and five year old children were employed in North Carolina, but he declared federal investigation had shown 15 per cent of the mill operators there violated the law by child employment.

Employers of child labor he loudly denounced and he said that users of child labor products were in fact to an extent the employers.

The program for the morning session included addresses by Lewis T. Bryant, commissioner of labor, and John Golden, president United Textile Workers of America; David Clark, managing editor, Southern Textile Bulletin, of Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. McKelway and others.

Dr. P. P. Claxton, of Atlanta, a missionary of education, and Julia C. Lathrop, chief of the federal children's bureau, were among those who addressed the afternoon session.

Tonight's session was to be addressed by Jane Addams, of Hull House, Chicago; Representative Murdock, of Kansas; and Senator Owen, of Oklahoma.

NO APPLICATIONS FOR GEORGIA COTTON LOAN

$135,000,000 Cotton Pool
Subscribed, But Georgians
Do Not Ask Loans

Not a single application for a loan has been made by farmers, merchants and bankers to the Georgia committee in charge of the state's allotment of the $135,000,000 cotton pool.

The money has been subscribed, and the state committee has sent out notices that applications will be entertained.

Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the committee, could offer no explanation, except that possibly the rise in the price of cotton of about $5 a bale since the pool was started has encouraged holders.

Mr. Maddox said that an advance of 5 cents a pound from the pool probably did not look as large now that cotton was selling around 8 cents as it would have back when the price was much lower. He also suggested that as the notice had just been sent out, probably it was too early to test the feeling of cotton holders.

T. M. JOHNSON GETS PLACE AS MARSHAL

Changes in the force of the municipal court, forecast several days ago in the Journal, were effected Wednesday.

T. Buchanan, the marshal, resigned to accept the office of assistant city investigator made vacant by the election of J. O. Cochran to the position of general manager of parks.

O. H. Puckett, chief deputy marshal, was appointed to succeed Mr. Buchanan as marshal by Chief Judge E. D. Thomas, of the municipal court, and M. M. George, who has been a deputy marshal, becomes chief deputy.

Mr. Johnson was added to the force as a deputy marshal.

COMMISSIONERS ACCEPT OIL PORTRAIT OF NELMS

The board of county commissioners Wednesday afternoon accepted the proffer of a fine oil portrait of the late Dr. John W. Nelms, made by his widow. Dr. Nelms was for twelve years the sheriff of Fulton county and prior to that time had served on the board of county commissioners. The portrait will be hung in the new court house.

In The January Sale of Undermuslins

A Day of Special Values

With the tables piled high with garments prettier and daintier and finer than we have ever had at their prices, it seems much like carrying coals to Newcastle to announce a day of special values in the January Sale of Undermuslins.

But this is another story.

Certain Lots of Gowns and Petticoats Remaining From Our Fall Stocks Have Become Soiled and we take tomorrow as the day of their disposal.

None is hurt, none but what, after one laundering, will be as a new garment. Things will get tossed and mused in the best regulated stores—and this is the price we pay.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TO MEET MONDAY MORNING

Citizens and Heads of Departments Will Be Heard on January Budget

The new finance committee of council, of which A. W. Farlinger, councilman from the Fourth ward, is chairman, will hold its first meeting on next Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock to begin work on the January appropriation sheet.

Chairman Farlinger announces that the committee will hear first from citizens, who are urging various municipal projects, and then from the various departmental heads. He anticipates the committee will be in continuous session probably for the entire week.

Interest in municipal affairs is centered in the January sheet, for on it hinges the fate of all projects requiring an expenditure of the city's money during the year.

Councilman Farlinger declares that in making up the sheet he will bitterly oppose the anticipation of any more revenue for 1915 than the city received during 1914. It has long been the custom of the finance committee to anticipate an increase in revenue, which has generally been justified by subsequent receipts, but Mr. Farlinger says that with general business conditions depressed the city would not be justified this year in anticipating an increase in revenue.

Often times the policy of the finance committee has held executive sessions, when it has heard the wants of citizens and department and is ready to actually make the appropriation.

Mr. Farlinger, however, has gone on record as having opposed the expenditure of the people's money behind closed doors, and says that he will fight to have open sessions of the committee.

Besides Mr. Farlinger the new finance committee is composed of the following members of council: Inman, Seawright, Keller, McDonald, Dutton, and Ragsdale.

Dempsey-Wright Wedding

Plans

An interesting event of the evening in Macon will be the wedding of Miss Monica Dempsey and Mr. Horace Wright at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. L. L. Dempsey, on College street. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 by the Rev. Father Frankhauser, and will be witnessed only by the bridal party and relatives; but at 9 o'clock a wedding reception will follow.

Miss Marie Needham, a cousin of the bride from Columbus, will be maid of honor. Miss James McBride, Miss Farter, of New York; Miss Louise Callaway and Miss Helen Callaway, of Macon, will be the bridesmaids.

Mr. Hal Williams will act as Mr. Wright's best man, and the groomsmen will be Mr. A. D. Schofield, Jr., Mr. Tom Marcy, Mr. Bob Helms, Mr. Callaway and Mr. Gus Daly, of Macon. A number of affairs planned in Miss Dempsey's honor were postponed because of her recent illness, and prolonged stay in Washington, where she and her mother, Mrs. L. L. Dempsey, have been spending several months.

Pan-Hellenic Officers Elected

The Atlanta Pan-Hellenic held their first meeting of the year Tuesday afternoon, at the University club.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Miss Bessie Kempton, president; Miss Fannie Hinton, first vice president; Miss Yae Strickland, second vice president; Mrs. O. P. Elder, recording secretary; Miss Elizabeth Walker, treasurer; and Miss Elizabeth Hines, recording secretary.

This meeting was organized in March 1914, and during the intervening years has been a scholarly organization. It has a school, and expect to add the clinic for little crippled children, of which Mr. Michael Hoke is charge.

To Mrs. Lewis

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Palmer and Miss Anna Akers will entertain at a tea party, Saturday evening, at the Atlanta hotel, in honor of Mrs. Jesse Lewis, of Memphis, Tenn., the guest of Miss Mary Hawkins. Mrs. Lewis was formerly Miss Evelyn Reynolds, of Atlanta and Birmingham.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid paraffin from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in evenly with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve, and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all kinds and sizes of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be shiny, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. (Adv.)

KEELY KEELY KEELY A sale of French underwear

This is the sale for which you've waited
Real imported undermuslins

At marvelously low prices
We have been very lucky in getting over, for our annual French lingerie sale, our import order given nearly a year in advance. Every item offered in this sale is a 1914 model, genuine French hand made. Unless it be in some house that has given its foreign order at least a year ahead, you will not find these dainty beauties, anywhere at any price.

French gowns, chemises, corset covers, combinations, drawers and petticoats in soft finish foreign materials, every piece made by hand and hand embroidered.

The gowns $1.89 to $16.50 each
---are hand made, hand embroidered and in some cases real lace trimmed. The laces are Clunys, Vals, and Irish crochets. Many of them are made empire back and front with lace insertions, some have shallow yokes of hand embroidery, all are slip-over styles, both in short and 3-4 sleeves.

The Chemise 79c to $6.95 each
---these imported chemises are fine nainsooks, circular necks with dainty scallop edges in assorted patterns of hand embroidery, some are finished with ribbon eyelets, other effective styles are trimmed with Cluny, and hand embroideries combined.

The Corset Covers 79c to $6.95 each
---are of fine nainsooks and batistes, hand embroidered, some are lace trimmed, all have ribbon eyelets, all are button fronts, many Madeira patterns are shown in the assortment.

The combinations $2.95 to $11.50 each
---of soft sheer materials. These come both in drawer and corset cover and drawer and skirt combinations, both in princess and ribbon belt styles. Real lace trimmed, hand made and hand embroidered.

The drawers $1.35 to $5.00 pair

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-order, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste.

When clogged, liver, bowels, stomach, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, or sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, clogged food and sour bile will move out of its little bowels without gripping and you have a well, playful child again.

Mother can rest easy after giving this harmless "Fruit Laxative" because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—(Adv.)

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THOMAS W. BURGESS.

What you don't know another may. So use you tongue to find things out. That's always Peter Rabbit's way. With things he doesn't know about.

Peter Rabbit couldn't get Buster Bear off his mind. It seemed to him the queerest thing ever that when almost everybody else made tracks in the snow he couldn't find one of Buster Bear's. He thought of it the last thing before he went to sleep and the first thing when he awoke. He was still thinking of it as he hopped along down the Lone Little Path through the Green Forest and quite unexpectedly met Prickly Porky.

Prickly Porky was the first glimpse of him Peter remembered that Prickly Porky used to know Buster Bear before either of them had come down from the Great Woods to live in the Green Forest. He would know what had become of Buster. Of course he would.

Peter had it right on the tip of his tongue and Prickly Porky when he remembered that Prickly Porky is a queer fellow and doesn't like to be bothered with questions. You know that there are many people just like him in the matter. So Peter swallowed hard, just as if he were swallowing the question on the tip of his tongue.

"Good evening, Prickly Porky," said he in his most polite and best manner.

"That's a good evening," grunted Prickly Porky, fretfully. "What do you want to say to me this evening when there's all this snow on the ground? I don't like it. I wouldn't be out in it now if it wasn't that I'm so hungry. I just have to eat."

"Oh," said Peter, because he couldn't think of anything else to say. Then he added, "I rather like the snow myself. You see, I'm not so heavy as you are and I guess it is easier for me to get about."

"Huh! I guess it is," grunted Prickly Porky.

"Yes," said Peter, "I guess it is. I don't think in the way you do. It must be because I'm lighter. I should think Buster Bear would sink 'way, way, in it. I can't think that he does, though. For I haven't found a single track of his, and I've been all through the Green Forest. I don't see how he gets around without leaving tracks, great big tracks."

"Huh!" grunted Prickly Porky, and stared very hard at Peter. "Huh!" he grunted again. "Buster Bear's got more sense than to be wandering about this weather. He's asleep."

"Asleep!" Peter fairly shouted it.

"I said asleep," replied Prickly Porky gruffly. "If I could sleep and not get hungry the way Buster Bear can I'd do it myself."

With this Prickly Porky began to climb a poplar tree to get his dinner of bark, and Peter knew that he wouldn't be the least use to ask any of the questions that fairly burned his tongue.

So he had Prickly Porky goodbye and went on.

"Buster Bear asleep," he muttered over and over to himself as if he couldn't quite believe it. And the truth is he couldn't.

"Asleep!" Peter fairly shouted it.

"I said asleep," replied Prickly Porky gruffly. "If I could sleep and not get hungry the way Buster Bear can I'd do it myself."
